This Week....

This week in Maths we have been using the 'maths code' and been writing out addition number sentences. We have also been using a number line to help us to answer addition questions.

In English we have been looking at the story 'The Snow Dragon'. We created the world where the dragons lived then wrote out words which described the setting. The children were then asking questions to 'book' to find out a little more about the characters.

Pictures to follow on the website.

Next Week...

We will be looking at stories about dragons and ordering them, looking at the beginning, middle and end. We will also have a go at changing the stories to make alternative endings.

In Maths we will be using number lines to answer subtraction questions and we will be continuing to write number sentences using our 'maths code',

In phonics we will be looking at split diagraphs. Your children have been given spellings this week which use the split diagraph a-e.
