Learning this Week

In our English work we have focused on the Simon Bartram story 'Bob and the Moontree Mystery'. The children have collected vocabulary and designed their own baby aliens and written character descriptions.

In Mathematics we have been collecting data and recording it in pictograms. We have used collected data to answer questions.

In RE we have been finding out about the Sikh holy books and some customs and in our Science work we have been exploring animal groupings and how animals adapt to cold in order to live in Antarctica or the Arctic circle.

Our Geography work has focused on the Poles and the children have been using atlases to research information and answer questions.

Learning next Week

Our English work will continue to focus on stories by Simon Bartram. We will be writing our own adventures for Bob, the man in the moon.

In Mathematics we will be looking at money, combining amounts and using the correct notations.

Our RE work will focus on the topic of Good News and we will begin exploring angels as messengers of God.

In our Science and Geography work we will continue exploring climates, animal groups and their adaptations.

Thank you to all parents that were able to attend Parents Evening last week.
