"Ocean Commotion"

Learning this Week

We have been learning about how to present non-fiction information. We have really enjoyed looking in books to find the features of non-fiction books such as the glossary, index and contents page. We have also shown our understanding of the difference between non-fiction and fiction, looking at facts and fiction statements.

We will continue to look at sea creatures. Thank you to all the children who have brought in their own sea creature or ocean books to share with the class. We have been finding out some amazing facts.

We have also watched a few clips from You Tube - What Sam Sees; a very informative program for children about sea creatures which can be watched at home too.

In Maths we have been working really well to understand subtraction. We have also been looking at how to present and interpret data which links with our learning in Science about what types of exercise we enjoy participating in.

Learning next Week

In English we will be presenting our own class 'Ocean Fact File' using all the features of non-fiction texts that we have learned this week.

In Maths we will be looking at place value and how we can partition numbers to help us with subtraction. We will also continue learning our times tables - 2, 3, 5 and 10. The children are really enjoying mastering them! In RE we will discuss how the three shepherds reacted to the good news of the birth of Jesus and reflect on how we might have reacted.
